A Romantic Story.

The Examiner unearths the very romantic history of Donna Sophia, a little half-breed Mexican girl, who is the heir of a tract of the best lands in Arizona, 150 miles long by 60 wide. Roscoe Conkling and Bob Ingersoll are her attorneys. She is the daughter of a white loafer and Digger squaw, and the chain of title goes back to Ferdinand VI, of Spain.

Stray.

Broke into my enclosure about June 1st, one roan cow, marked, swallow fork in right ear and under bit and crop on left. Branded on left hip. Owner is requested to come forward prove property, pay charges and receive the cow.

ALL SORTS.

—Wizard Oil at Geo. Thaxter's.

—The Alta speaks of D. A. Bender as a Carson mining man.

—Attorney Stone, of Virginia, is still in this city.

—Every stage that comes down from the Lake is packed with tourists.

—Rev. G. R. Davis will hold service at 8 o'clock this evening, at Empire.

—William Flynn died of heart disease at the Poor House a few days ago.

—Hardly a day passes that some camping party does not start for the mountains.

—Joe Platt is on the war path with a new lot of goods, which defy all competition.

—Most of the members of the Bicycle Club will appear this evening in full dress uniform.

—Geo. Hark recovered judgment yesterday against the Stevedore Mining Co. for $60.45 for meat.

—The APPEAL acknowledges the receipt of tickets to the Caledonian picnic at Bower's Mansion, August 6th.

—For Sale.—A large roomy residence in the Western part of the city. Fine location. Apply at this office.

—Bishop Manogue will be in Carson today and administer confirmation at St. Theresa's Catholic Church.

—A few days since a sheep herder was found dead, having been shot through the head, on the road between Bridgeport, Mono county, and Bodie.

—Cleveland evidently proposes to look all over the country and select a place to settle down after his term expires.

—T. W. Booth the present Manager of the Western Union Telegraph office in Virginia, has resigned his position to accept a more lucrative position at Ogden, Utah.

—Mrs. J. P. Pettegrew was granted a divorce from her husband at Genoa last Monday and awarded certain stipulated property and the custody of her son, Judson, aged 19 years.

—Mr. Cyrus Powers brother of ex-Assemblyman Powers, who was injured by a team dragging him over the ground at Tallac last Wednesday, has since died of his injuries.

—The filters placed in the reservoir of the Reno Water company have not proved as successful as expected. It will take something more powerful than the filters to improve the reservoir water.

—The case of the parties arrested for beating a Chinaman was dismissed. Three men swore that they did not lay a hand on him and the fact that his face looked like the map of Pekin was explained on the theory that in running out of the house he fell on a woodpile.

—John Sherman's name is not one to conjure with in a Presidential campaign. The Republicans should make no false step at the present time. In the next contest they need their best and strongest man, and his name is not John Sherman, but it is James G. Blaine.—Sac-Bee.

—Enough facts have been given us of a little episode in Ploch domestic life for a first class local sensation; but we forbear taking advantage of the heartrending, side-splitting, tear-starting and love betraying circumstances to work it up. The actors being one female and one male.—Record.

—The San Francisco Examiner has got Counsellor Clark, the warrant shaver, in a very tight place and it is to be hoped that it will keep him there. The Examiner seems to be owned by no one but the proprietor and is shaking up the bones of the official graveyard in fine shape. This is probably the reason that its circulation is increasing 1,000 a week.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our regular correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, July 22, 1887.—The Washington friends of both Mr. Blaine and Senator Sherman were greatly surprised at the published statement that the latter would be willing to take second place on the ticket with the former; but it is useless to deny that the following of the Maine Statesman view the report with gratification, however much they may doubt its correctness. On the other hand, the characteristically courageous course of the Ohio Senator in submitting his Presidential prospect to the decision of the Republican party in State convention assembled at Toledo, is generally commended as wise, proper and patriotic. But if the Republican National ticket should be a happy chance, be Blaine and Sherman, the party might go further and fare worse, for it is extremely doubtful, whether a stronger combination could be presented, as it is well known, that the Democrats stand in almost mortal dread of these two great Statesmen, who are probably the most eminent of living Republican leaders.

President and Mrs. Cleveland have returned after pleasantly spending their Summer holidays in traveling on special complimentary cars and steamers among the picturesque scenery of Northern New York. I do not mention this to condemn the President for accepting such courtesies at the hands of corporations, as did Democratic newspapers, when Presidents, Grant, Hayes and Arthur, were the recipients of similar favors, but merely to express my personal good wishes for the Presidential party on that occasion.

Recently there is a sort of mania of resignation among the clerks of the different Departments—especially in the Treasury—and this sudden yearning for the quiet of private life is attributed to a dread of the New Civil Service rules. It is held by the Democrats that these rules are so framed and the questions arranged so as to prevent partiality in the examination for promotion, but I have good reasons to believe that the true design is really to discriminate against Republicans and in favor of the Democrats, because the questions asked are few and simple and nearly every clerk passes without difficulty, yet it still lies for the Chief, not of the office or division, it is true, but of the Examining Board to decide, who shall be dismissed or promoted; and as these Chiefs are generally of the dominant party, the result in most cases, can easily be forecasted.

There is much whispered gossip about the "resignation" of the Chief Clerk of the Patent Office, and many think it grew out of the Bacon defalcation. And it is my opinion that they are right and that the same affair will cause the dismissal of other prominent officials.

Under the clever manipulation of Gen. Black, the Pension office can hardly be considered a model institution, as viewed from a civil service standpoint, for it appears that only Democrats can stand the test of examination, as not one Republican has been given a position no matter how excellent an examination he passed, or how he ranked on the list of eligibles. There is clearly something wrong in the way the Civil Service is worked in this bureau, and an investigation should be ordered as soon as practicable.

In over-hauling the White House it has been discovered that the old mansion contains decayed timbers, and a feeling of uneasiness has been excited lest the interior of the building should crash down some day and endanger the lives of the President's family and visitors. Workmen are busy replacing the ceiling, but still much apprehension is felt that the hand of time has so weakened the supports of the building that it is hardly considered a safe place of residence or a proper place for the frequent assembling of hundreds of people.

After an absence of seven years in Mexico, where he has been mining on a large scale and laying the foundation of a magnificent fortune for himself and others, Alax R. Shepherd, Ex-Governor of the District of Columbia, gratifies his hosts of friends in the beautiful city which he did more than any other to create and adorn by returning to enjoy a brief rest and recover his shattered health amid the familiar scenes of trials and triumphs, where his name and fame will always be bright. Only the illness of Mr. Shepherd prevented him from receiving a grand popular ovation in his own city.

People Who Drain the Country.

It is said that thousands of Italians annually make what they deem a fortune in America and return home to remain. All that many of them want is to accumulate $500 or $600. This will set them up in business in Italy, where a man can do a great deal more with $500 than he can do here with $5,000. The income of $500 judiciously invested will support a family in Italy. There are many happy homes in Northern Italy made by a few years' work on American railroads.—Gazette.

Of what earthly use to America are such people as the above. Any man who comes to America to starve himself to death a few years to save money to take back to Europe with him, is no better than the Chinese. People who can not assimilate with Americans had better stay at home. Italy is dumping its lazzaroni upon us and about every country in Europe is shifting its paupers, criminals and Anarchists, to America.

People as a rule fear to protest against this invasion for fear that this or that class of foreigners will get down on them. Any native born American who fears to protect his own rights of citizenship is a miserable coward who ought to get out of the country himself.

Off to the Mountains.

This morning a camping party consisting of Johnny Morris, Billy Taylor, Andy Waters and Tim Dempsey, leave for Hope Valley and Kirkwood's, to be gone for several weeks. They would have started last night, but at a late hour discovered that there was only $30 left in the party to buy whiskey, and concluded to postpone the trip another day.

Johnny Morris hasn't set any type for several months, to enable his hands to get in proper condition to turn a jack from the bottom, and he put in all last week doctoring poker decks with which to beguile the horny fisted ranchers of the little mountain valleys.

Every time Morris spends a few weeks at Kirkwood's he lugs back several hundred dollars in coarse gold. If the Kirkwood ranchers took a daily newspaper they could avoid these card disasters, but they don't, hence the annual losses.

Report Denied.

A few weeks ago it was reported that Marquis De Leuville had met Prince Eristoff in Hyde Park, slapped his face, stood him on his head, etc., etc. Now the latter comes out in a card, stating that he was never struck by De Leuville, and that if he were he should simply order one of his servants to chastise him, as he should consider an insult from such a quarter as beneath his personal notice. All quiet on the Potomac.

Sensation at Folsome.

SACRAMENTO, July 28.—The latest sensation at Folsome happened on Wednesday evening last. The Masons were having an installation, and the ceremonies lasted at a late hour. This angered the wife of one of the members, and she marched to the hall, forced open the door, caught hold of her husband, threw him down stairs and then escorted him home.
